DOROTHY WILLIAMS

“MONTREAL BLACK HISTORY IN FEMINIST THOUGHT”

Historian Dorothy Williams is a native Montrealer who has been active for many years in the round table preparations for Black History Month. She is the founder of Ethnocultural Diffusion which is devoted to collecting the oral history of Blacks in Montreal. Dorothy works with SAVE Canada which sponsored the Conference on Zero Tolerance in the year 2000. As an oral historian, Dorothy particularly enjoys visiting secondary schools, telling students the story of Blacks in Montreal. Dorothy is currently enrolled in the Masters Programme at Concordia's Department of History. Her book, The Road to Now: A history of Blacks in Montreal will be released by Vehicule Press this spring.
